UNION SERVICES ECLIPSE RECORD

Attendance Sunday Evening at Presbyterian Church Taxes Auditorium's Capacity.

OVER 600 WERE PRESENT

Rev. Mr. N. L. Horn, of Trinity Reformed Church, Preaches Sermon on Text, "To Whom Shall We Go?"

All previous records for attendance at the Union Evangelical Services, now being held in Gettysburg, were eclipsed Sunday evening when fully 600 persons crowded the Presbyterian Church and taxed the capacity of the auditorium. Every available corner was filled with chairs.

Following the sermon, which was preached by the Rev. Mr. N. L. Horn, 25 reconsecration cards were signed by members of the audience and returned to the pulpit, expressing a loyalty and a determination to serve Jesus.

The theme of the sermon, which Mr. Horn also put to the congregation in the form of a question, "To Whom Shall We Go?", was based upon the passage from John, 6:28. "Simon Peter said unto him, Lord, to whom shall we go? Thou hast the words of eternal life."

During the course of the sermon, the question was changed to read, "To Whom Shall We Go?"

Clearly relating the conditions under which the question asked by the disciple Peter arose, the balance of Rev. Mr. Horn's discussion was the expansion of three main thoughts. His text, in part, was:

"First,—The fact that we must have some one to go to. Man is so constituted that he instinctively seeks a leadership. He selects a policy for his life, nor does he sacrifice to abstract things or principles. The identity of his leader is the only question."

"Second,—Some cast their lot with the worldly, but the end is disastrous. Like the prodigal son, they come to feed upon husks."

"In the world today I see the modern martyrs not in the church, but in the world. Men say the doctrine of Jesus is hard, but how much harder is the doctrine of the world? The reward of the worldly is a cross without a crown."

"Shall we have Bolshevism in America? Shall man set himself up for the standard? That would be a return to the jungle."

"Or shall self-respect, honesty and morality in general be the policy? This is the only course that will satisfy the human heart, for none will satisfy save Jesus. 'It is Jesus or chaos.'"

"Third,—Thus we arrive at the answer, 'It is Jesus!' Why? Because Jesus has the words of eternal life. 'I am the way, the truth, the life,' He said."

"Thus you must answer this question, 'To Whom Shall We Go?' You will follow some leader, and your heart must tell you Jesus Christ."

The large choir, made possible through the cooperation of the Methodist, United Brethren, Reformed and Presbyterian churches in these Union services, rendered a number of well-received selections under the leadership of S. H. Orme. A free-will offering was taken up for the choir (Continued on Second Page)

H. K. Schnell, Twice Burgess of New Oxford, Dies of Injuries

Veteran of the Civil War Fell From Roof of House Thursday Morning, Sustaining Fracture of the Skull; Missed Top Rung of Ladder and Dropped Between 25 and 30 Feet.

H. K. Schnell, veteran of the Civil War, twice burgess of New Oxford, and prominent resident of that community, died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Jacob Hulick, New Oxford, Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock, of injuries sustained Thursday morning when he fell from the roof of a house. Mr. Schnell, who was 82 years old, died without regaining consciousness after the accident. Death was the result of a fractured skull.

The aged man had just finished painting the roof of a house on Lincoln Way East, owned by him, but occupied by another family, and was about to return to the ground when the accident occurred. He had placed a ladder against the side of the house to ascend to the roof, but in reaching for it, in order to return to the ground, his foot missed the top rung. At the same time, he lost his hold on the eave of the house and fell to the ground, a distance of between 25 and 30 feet.

He was picked up unconscious and bleeding profusely from the ears, nose and mouth. It is believed he struck

READING FIREMEN VISIT THIS PLACE

Are Guests of the Battlefield Town's Firefighters as Return of Courtesy.

Fourteen members of the Hampden Fire Company, of Reading, accompanied by their wives, were the guests of the Gettysburg Fire Company here on Sunday. They were received at the parlors of the Engine House, and shortly afterward were taken to the Blue Parrot for luncheon.

During the afternoon, the entire party was taken for a tour of the battlefield, and was treated to refreshments upon the return to the engine house.

Accompanied by a delegation of the local firemen, the party left for McSherrystown at 4 o'clock, where royal entertainment was provided by the men of that place at their engine house. When they left McSherrystown, the Gettysburg delegation accompanied the visitors as far as York Springs. The Reading people then proceeded to Harrisburg, where they were the guests of the Good Will Fire Company Sunday night.

The Hampden Fire Company, of Reading, entertained both the Gettysburg and McSherrystown fire companies in Reading last month. The chairman of the entertainment committee, appointed by local firemen to care for the wants of the visitors, was James B. Aumen, chief of the Gettysburg Fire Company.

Football Teams of Battlefield Town Vanquish Two Opponents In Hard-Fought Games on Saturday

Gettysburg College Takes Ancient Rival, Muhlenberg, by 17 to 3 Score Before Crowd of 2,500 Persons On Home Ground.

Surrounded by an elongated circle of more than 2,500 persons, many of them graduates and former students here for the annual Alumni homecoming day, Gettysburg College trounced its time-honored enemy, Muhlenberg, in a thrilling gridiron contest on Nix-on field, by the score 17 to 3, Saturday afternoon.

It was an auspicious occasion, doubly so because in that large crowd of spectators were many of College's guests here for the inauguration of Dr. Henry W. A. Hanson on Friday. Muhlenberg's own president, Dr. John A. W. Haas, witnessed his team go down to defeat. Muhlenberg had a cheering section of more than 100 students, which kept things lively on the side opposite the Gettysburg stands. Every available inch of bleacher space was occupied and many patrons were forced to stand throughout the contest. Parking space around the gridded field was at a premium and at some places cars were parked two deep.

Colorful Cheering Section Many of the College students wore marigolds in their buttonholes, while the co-eds carried swaggar sticks natively tied with Orange and Blue ribbons. "The Bullet," a toy engine, painted in the College colors, "puffed and snorted" back and forth on the field during the halves. The contraption was constructed of a barrel mounted on two small express wagons. A cab and tender also helped in the simulation. The affair was pulled by students and led the parade around town before the game began.

Visitors Lead A While Each of the four quarters of the grid contest were bitterly fought, with Muhlenberg in the van until the closing minutes of the second period, when Emanuel, Gettysburg's idol, caught a punt in midfield, hurdled two would-be tacklers and dashed through a broken field for a touchdown, covering 45 yards.

Muhlenberg's Tricks Fail Muhlenberg opened his bag of tricks early in the fray, but none of its shifts stood it in good stead, since most of the plays were directed at Gettysburg's line which was impregnable. The first trick play pulled off by Muhlenberg was one in which Neudling, the center, turned around, facing his backfield before passing the ball, while the line and backs shift to the right or left for the attack. This developed into an off-tackle play which found the Gettysburg ends on the job, breaking it up before it got well under way.

Both sides resorted to punting and some of Gettysburg's best gains throughout the contest were wiped out by penalties of ten and fifteen yards for off-side and holding. In the first period alone, Gettysburg had 40 yards put on this way, and the second quarter opened with Muhlenberg in possession of the ball in Gettysburg's territory.

Slammer Kicks Drop The visitors carried the pigskin to the 25-yard line where Slammer dropped-kicked for the three lone points of the Allentown Collegians.

Shortly after the resulting kick-off Gettysburg made several first downs. Then Mordan tried a placement kick from the 48-yard line which fell short of the uprights by five feet. Soon afterward another placement was tried, but this one failed to rise even to the height of the uprights, and Muhlenberg kicked out from the 20-yard line.

REV. F. L. STINE PREACHES HERE

Pastor From Mont Alto U. B. Church Makes Favorable Impression.

Rev. F. L. Stine, who was transferred from the Mont Alto United Brethren church to the Gettysburg charge of that denomination by the 134th annual meeting of the Pennsylvania Conference of the United Brethren church at Dallastown ten days ago, preached his introductory sermon at the Gettysburg United Brethren church on Sunday morning and at Salem United Brethren church in the evening.

Rev. E. H. Hummelbaugh, who for the past three years was pastor of the local United Brethren charge, and who was transferred by the recent conference to the Mont Alto church, occupied the pulpit there on Sunday. Next Sunday, Rev. Mr. Stine and Rev. Mr. Hummelbaugh will preach their farewell sermons in their former respective churches. Next week, Rev. Mr. Stine and his family will move to Gettysburg to take up permanent residence in the United Brethren parsonage on West High street.

Before entering into his theme of the morning, Rev. Mr. Stine gave his new parishioners a personal history of himself and family. He said he and his wife were each 45 years old. They have two daughters and one son, he added, one of the girls being a teacher in the Shippensburg High School, the other a high school pupil, while the son is a junior of Lebanon Valley College, Annville.

NURSING BROKEN ARM, HE IS THROWN FROM BUGGY

Charles Thompson Treated at Warner Hospital For Severe Head Injuries.

Nursing a broken arm, sustained in a fall at the fertilizer plant of Oyler and Spangler, Charles Thompson, of Gettysburg R. 5, suffered cuts about the head and body when the buggy in which he was driving was struck by an automobile on the Lincoln Highway. Thompson was thrown out of the vehicle in which he was riding, falling to the concrete head first. The buggy was reported to be completely demolished. The name of the driver of the machine was not learned, and, it is said, he was a novice at the wheel. Thompson was admitted for treatment at the Warner Hospital after which he was discharged.

SPECIAL SERVICES AT ST. MARY'S, FAIRFIELD Week of Mission Program Opened Sunday Morning With Capacity Attendances.

Special mission services, which will continue throughout the coming week, were inaugurated Sunday morning at St. Mary's Church, Fairfield, with the Rev. Joseph A. Schmidt, representing the Harrisburg Apostolate, in charge of the exercises.

Father Schmidt was connected with the New York Apostolate for a long time, and has only recently returned to carry on mission work in the Harrisburg diocese. He is described as a forceful and convincing orator and draws large crowds wherever he labors.

The Fairfield Church was crowded to capacity at all services Sunday. During the coming week of services, mass will be held at 6 and 8 o'clock, with evening services at 7:30. The formal close of the mission will take place on Sunday.

High School Eleven Casts Cloud Over Waynesboro's Farmers' Day by Defeating That Team 26 to 0; Is Fifth Straight Victory.

Farmers' Day at Waynesboro, Saturday, proved successful in every possible way, except one. Gettysburg High School's football warriors defeated the Waynesboro High School gridders by the score 26 to 0, incidentally hanging up their fifth successive victory for the local aggregation. Gettysburg's win Saturday brings the total number of points scored against their opponents so far this season to 159.

Although handicapped to a great extent by the loss of Tennant, High School's husky fullback, who was out of the game because of a bruised knee, Coach Walter D. Reynolds found an able substitute in the person of "Dick" Downie. Gettysburg scored four touchdowns.

At the beginning of the first quarter, Waynesboro was greatly astonished when Zinn, Gettysburg's brilliant halfback, made a spectacular run of 80 yards from the kickoff, scoring the first touchdown for the Maroon and White eleven. McKendrick then kicked a drop, and Gettysburg had seven points.

Receiving the kickoff again, Gettysburg worked the ball toward Waynesboro's goal by means of end runs and line plunges. The second touchdown came soon afterward, when Bream, Gettysburg's left end, caught a forward pass behind the goal line. McKendrick kicked the goal. During the second period, Bream again showed fine form when he caught another forward pass over the goal line, giving him two touchdowns to his credit. McKendrick failed to kick the resultant goal.

Waynesboro came back strong during the second half, breaking through the Maroon and White line for three first downs, not being stopped until they threatened Gettysburg's goal.

Near the end of the last period, the local gridders scored their fourth touchdown when McKendrick, Gettysburg's fast quarterback and drop-kicker, dashed across the line through center. The extra point failed to count, because one of the Gettysburg (Continued on Sixth Page)

TOUR OF RAILWAY CONDUCTORS HERE

Large Delegation From Annual Convention of Order in Harrisburg.

More than 150 members of the Order of Railroad Conductors formed a large party coming to Gettysburg by special train this morning from Harrisburg, where they have held their annual convention during the past week-end.

Upon their arrival at this place, the visitors were met by guides and automobiles, when a trip over the battlefield was made. Dinner was served upon their return from the tour, and, after an informal tour of the town by small groups of the delegates, they were whisked back to Harrisburg on their special train.

The train was tendered the committee by the Reading Railway officials through C. E. Chamberlain, superintendent of the Harrisburg Division. The committees from each division forming the general committee are as follows:

The Committees Harrisburg Division, No. 449—C. E. Fleagle, N. H. Leary, E. F. Richwine, M. D. Derrick and J. Strawbecker.

WOMEN TO LEARN OF KU KLUX KLAN

Meeting Particularly For Them to be Held Thursday Afternoon.

Invitations have been received by members of the Ku Klux Klan, their friends and wives in Gettysburg and vicinity to attend two open meetings to be held in the Patriotic Order Sons of America lodge rooms, 17 Chambersburg street, Thursday afternoon and evening, October 25.

A meeting particularly for women will be held Thursday afternoon at 2:15 o'clock. Mrs. N. D. Goodwin, of Mississippi, the Queen Kleagle of the Women of the Ku Klux Klan in Pennsylvania, will address the gathering on the subject "Why the Women of the K. K. K." Mrs. Goodwin, who is known as an organizer for the Knights of the Invisible Empire, will outline the purposes and aims of the Ku Klux Klan as they affect women.

Rev. Dr. J. H. Hanson, prominent Baptist minister of Pittsburgh, who addressed an open meeting for men several weeks ago in the P. O. S. of A. lodge rooms, will also speak to the women on Thursday afternoon.

At the evening meeting, which is for men only, Rev. Dr. Hanson will again bring a message to Klansmen and their friends. The announced subject of his address is "Ku Klux Klans' Aims and Accomplishments."

NEXT DRY LAW IN GOVERNORS' HANDS

Executives Return Home Pledging to Call Two Enforcement Conferences.

Washington, Oct. 22.—Formulation of prohibition enforcement programs by the various States will come as the next step in the campaign of the Federal Government to make the dry laws more effective.

Governors of two-thirds of the States of the Union who attended the conference here with President Coolidge Saturday on enforcement of the immigration, narcotic and prohibition laws left for their homes Sunday pledged to call two kinds of conferences. One will include municipal, county and state officials, while the other will embrace the prosecuting attorneys of the various counties of each State.

To Coordinate Forces

The proposal for the conferences was adopted by the Governors along with other plans providing for coordination of all federal, state, county and municipal enforcement forces and for cooperation of the Federal authorities in the formulation of the State enforcement programs. In line with these proposals the Federal prohibition unit will be directed by the President to lend all assistance in promoting the conferences.

None of the Governors before leaving Washington would say when he would call the State conference. Some expressed the view that such meetings would be efficacious in obtaining better enforcement, while others were doubtful whether any substantial benefit would accrue from such meetings.

Benefit of Meeting Doubted Similar division of opinion existed among the State executives as to the ultimate benefit to result from Saturday's meeting between the President and representatives of the Justice, Treasury and Labor Departments, on the one hand, and Governors or representatives of Governors from 37 States and Territories. Executives favorable to prohibition predicted that it would result in better enforcement. Those inclined to the opposite view, however, frankly declared they couldn't see how the conference would do much, if anything, to stop liquor drinking, sale or manufacture.

Governor Pinchot, of Pennsylvania, in a statement issued here Sunday, suggested a system of permits under the Internal Revenue law, which, he said "would put an end to the larger part of our trouble."

GEORGE S. SHAFFER

George Samuel Shaffer died at his home, near Brysonia, this morning at 6:45 o'clock after a lingering illness from a complication of diseases. He was aged 55 years, 10 months and 25 days.

Surviving him are his wife, two daughters, Mrs. Leonard Shaffer and Miss Cora, at home; two step brothers, John L. Butler, Albion, Michigan, and William, of Fayetteville. He was the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Shaffer, of Franklin county.

He was a member of the Arendtsville Reformed Church and the William Penn Castle, K. G. E.

REPUBLICS MAY SPREAD IN RUHR

Success of Separatists in Berlin Desired Throughout Occupied Zone.

LEADER KEEPS IN TOUCH

Bavarian Premier Declares Country Cannot Remain United With Germany; Situation Worries French.

(By Associated Press)

Duesseldorf, Oct. 22.—The Rhineland Separatists, having successfully proclaimed a Republic in Aix-La-Chapelle, now are planning to make their power effective throughout the entire zone occupied by France and Belgium. They hope to accomplish their purpose before night if possible.

Joseph Matthes, the Separatist leader, set up general headquarters at Dueren from which he is directing the occupation of public buildings.

The French and Belgians placed a telephone at Matthes' disposal in order to keep in touch with movements throughout the Rhineland.

Few details of what actually happened over-night had reached French headquarters today. The Separatists worked quickly to establish their republic before counterplans could be set up.

(By Associated Press)

London, Oct. 22.—The Bavarian premier, Dr. Von Kulling, has declared that Bavaria cannot remain united with Germany, according to a dispatch from Berlin this afternoon. Reuter's Berlin correspondent says that telegrams from the German capital are subject to censorship.

(By Associated Press)

Paris, Oct. 22.—It is understood that Premier Poincare doubts the success of the Separatists movement in the Rhineland and apprehends increased difficulties for the allies if it succeeds. There seems to be more worry in French official circles over the situation in Bavaria than in the Rhineland.

STEAMER SINKING NEAR TO JAMAICA

Sends Frantic Radio Calls For Help; Passengers in Life-boats.

(By Associated Press)

New York, Oct. 22.—The United Fruit Steamer San Gil, out of Boston for Havana and Colon, reported by radio at 5:30 this morning that she was sinking in heavy seas southwest of Jamaica. The message received by the Independent Wireless Telegraph Company said:

"Weather heavy, pounding to pieces, passengers taking to life boats. Hurry help."

Fifteen minutes later another call was received from the ship. It said: "Help quick." The message was broken off after the two words and no more was received.

The radio station at East Hampton at once started broadcasting the calls for help to ships at sea. Answers were received from the steamship Portola and from the steamship Pastore. The latter vessel said she was on her way to the rescue under forced steam, but would not be able to reach the position before the middle of the afternoon.

STOCK REPORT

Prices Irregular; Tobacco and Rails Show Brisk Demand.

(By Associated Press)

New York, Oct. 22.—Irregular high prices characterized the opening of today's stock market with a brisk demand for tobacco and certain railroad shares. Buying power was soon exhausted, however, and the general list turned downward before noon. Weakness cropped out in the railroad, rubber and textile shares while the usual industrial leaders dropped below Saturday's closing figures. Call money opened at 4 1/2 per cent.

"And fencing's hard to be got at, by what I can make out."—Silas Marner.

It is hard for us to realize the difficulties that attended fencing a garden or field before the days of wire fencing; yet one does not need to be very old to remember when the first woven-wire fences were put up.

Before the days of wire fencing, the common fencing materials were rails, boards, pickets, stumps, stone and hedges.

The most popular fences for inclosing fields before the days of wire fencing were rail fences; while board fences or picket fences were commonly used for inclosing gardens or lawns.

Building a rail fence was a matter of great skill and no little labor. The trees that were to be used for rails were first cut into logs of the desired length, and the logs were then split into rails. Oak and chestnut were the favorite woods for rails in the country where I grew up, but hickory and walnut and hard maple and the other hardwood trees were also used. Well-built rail fences would last for a half century or more, increasing in picture-queeness as they became weathered and overgrown with moss and lichen. Old rail fences were a favorite haunt of the striped chipmunk and the lizard and the fence corners of such fences were usually grown up with blackberries, sassafras, sumac and the like.

Up through Michigan, Ontario and other parts of the northern country one often sees stump fences—the weirdest possible objects especially in dim twilight. The stumps are usually great things several feet in diameter and are hauled out of the ground with several feet of root fringing them the whole way around. They are arranged on edge around the field, ordinarily with the bottom of the stump facing the road and the top of the stump facing the field and with the roots interlocking in the air like the tentacles of great octopuses.

Stone fences are commonly found in the hilly and mountainous sections of the eastern and southern states. They were built by farmers who knew of no other way to dispose of the stones that they picked up when clearing their fields, and grow higher from year to year as each plowing turns up more stones. They are very often overgrown with grapevines and poison ivy and Virginia creeper and briars and are the most picturesque of all fences when these plants wear their autumn colors.

LLOYD GEORGE AT LINCOLN'S HOME

Former Premier of Britain is Visitor at President's Shrine.

GOES BY SPECIAL TRAIN

School Children Greet English Visitor
at Kentucky Courthouse by Singing
"God Save the King."

Louisville, Oct. 22.—The birthplace of Abraham Lincoln, at Hodgenville, in Western Kentucky, was visited Sunday by David Lloyd George, the former British Premier. Evidencing the greatest interest in the log cabin in which Lincoln is said to have been born and all landmarks on the old farm, which is now a national park, the distinguished visitor trudged along the place and asked a running fire of questions concerning the early life of the man who is his ideal.

Mr. Lloyd George last week visited the tomb of the martyred President at Springfield, Ill., and arranged to visit the birthplace during his week-end stay here as the guest of Judge Robert W. Bingham, publisher of the Louisville Times and Courier-Journal. Although at first intending to go by automobile, the former Premier made the 60 mile run on a special train furnished by Judge Bingham. Members of the official party and several residents of Louisville accompanied him on the trip.

Greeted by Natives
At Hodgenville Mr. Lloyd George was met by a crowd of several hundred Kentuckians, all characteristic pre-Revolutionary American stock who still live in a region but sparsely settled and who habitually refer in conversation to the great President as "Abe."

Proceeding to the public square the former Premier stopped in front of the old courthouse to inspect the monument of Lincoln by A. A. Weinman, and was received by citizens and school children, the latter singing "God Save the King" as the distinguished visitor stood before them bareheaded, and then presenting him with flowers.

Visits Old Loghouse
Over the rough country road Mr. Lloyd George from there went by automobile to the farm with its old log fence surrounding it and, with several hundred residents from the vicinity about him, entered the granite memorial building to inspect the loghouse within. Carefully examining the small structure of logs and clay, built without the aid of nails, he peered through chinks in the wall, stood at the open doorway to be photographed and then signed the visitors' register.

Washington, Oct. 22.—A world survey of agriculture is being made at the direction of Secretary Wallace. It was announced Sunday, to keep American farmers informed as to foreign competitive conditions and to indicate what opportunities exist abroad for the sale of American farm products.

The information obtained by the investigators, it is believed, will enable farmers intelligently to anticipate vital changes in world agriculture, instead of being forced to carry on their operations in the dark.

Extending Foreign Service
Scope studies already have been completed and others are being made. In addition the Department of Agriculture is extending and improving its foreign crop and market reporting service. Its commissioners in London and Berlin now investigate demand for agricultural products and assist in developing the European market.

Arrangements have been made for extensive cooperation with the consular service of the State Department in developing a supplementary reporting system.

A number of other projects designed to better agricultural conditions are under way. One is to assemble statistics of supply and demand and make it easy to determine their significance as indicators of price conditions. Such forecasts, officials believe, will enable farmers to increase or limit their output well in advance of price changes on which they now have to rely for guidance.

Special Canadian Wheat Inquiry
A special investigation is in progress into the handling and reporting of shipments of Canadian wheat to and through the United States and of corresponding movements of Canadian wheat through Canada, the object of which is to clear up confusion in the statistics of exports and imports as published by the two countries.

Statistics dealing with important items in banking, industry, foreign and domestic commerce and general prices to be used in measuring the demand for agricultural products are being gathered and will be kept up to date for future studies.

RHINE REPUBLIC IS PROCLAIMED

Coup at Aix-La-Chapelle Carried Out Without Opposition.

MOVE LOCAL, SAYS BERLIN

Separatists Occupy Public Buildings in Peaceful Manner, and Post Proclamations Through City.

Aix-La-Chapelle, Prussia, Oct. 22.—A Rhineland Republic was proclaimed here Sunday.

Rhinelanders occupied the public buildings at 4 o'clock Sunday morning without opposition from the security police.

They purpose immediately to begin an extension of their control throughout the Belgian area.

Two Proclamations Issued

The city was calm Sunday, presenting its usual Sunday appearance. The public buildings occupied by the separatists displayed the colors of the Rhineland Republic—green, white and red. Two proclamations were placarded. The first of these said:

"To the people of the Rhineland: The hour of liberty has struck. Berlin has plunged us in distress and misery. We come to our own assistance."

"We proclaim today a Rhineland Republic. Free and independent, we wish to live in peace and friendship with our neighbors and to work in an effective manner with them for the reconstruction of Europe."

Peace and Bread Assured
"Workers, every man to his post. Immediate care will be taken to assure peace, work and bread."

(Signed) "The Provisional Government."

"Leo Deckers and Dr. Gathardt."

The second proclamation reads as follows:
"The Rhineland Republic is an accomplished fact. Any resistance will be crushed pitilessly. Pillagers and disturbers of public order will be punished with the severest penalties."

Signatures Similar

"We shall apply all our care to the questions of food supply and work and will preserve order and peace."

This proclamation was signed in the same way as the first.
No other separatist attempt has yet been reported from the other portions of the occupied territory. It is reported here that Dusseldorf is tranquil.

Berlin Doubts Wider Scope

Berlin, Oct. 22.—The proclamation of a Rhineland Republic at Aix-La-Chapelle is regarded in official circles in Berlin as a purely local affair engineered by separatists with the support of the Franco-Belgian authorities. It is considered as not likely to spread to other Rhineland and Ruhr towns.

The Cabinet met Sunday afternoon, but the question under discussion was primarily the Bavarian problem, of which some solution is considered urgent.

Movement Known In Paris

Paris, Oct. 22.—A movement by the separatists for an independent republic in the Rhineland was begun in the early hours of Sunday morning, but up to Sunday evening no news had been received in Paris that a republic had been proclaimed anywhere except in Aix-La-Chapelle.

HERE'S THE FINISH! Zev, the American horse, with Earl Sande up, crosses the tape at Belmont Park four lengths ahead of Papyrus, England's champion. Result of the $100,000 international match race was never in doubt from the start. Zev jumped to the front and kept the lead throughout. The defeated English three-year-old colt went into the race a 9 to 10 favorite. Papyrus was ridden by Steve Donoghue, the greatest jockey in the British Isles.

large classes in the men and women branches of the order, the secret sessions, scheduled for Sunday brought important information.

L. E. Sheppard, president of the order, who has been in the East for some time, reached Harrisburg some time Sunday. The Woodlawn degree team, which had charge of the initiatory work, arrived in Harrisburg early Sunday morning. The men met in Chestnut Street Auditorium and the women in the hall. L. S. Sheppard was director general of both sessions. William B. Burgess was in charge of the men's meeting, and Mrs. J. H. Moore, of Toledo, Ohio, grand president of the Ladies' Auxiliary, presided over the women's sessions. Mrs. Moore has been in Harrisburg for several days.

Interest in Classes
Considerable interest was manifested in the classes to be initiated. Candidates came from all parts of the United States. Initiation sessions are held at intervals in various parts of the United States. There is considerable rivalry for the honor of taking in the largest number of new members. Denver holds a record. While no figures will be given out, it is the belief that Harrisburg will be the banner city for a long time to come.

Trip For Visitors
It was not all business with the men and women. The Harrisburg committee planned an interesting program for the entertainment of the visitors. From 9 a. m. to 11 a. m., Sunday, automobiles took the conductors and their wives on a tour of Harrisburg and vicinity. The start was made at Chestnut Street Hall. The first car carried white flags, indicating a "special," and the occupants were President Sheppard and other officials.

The last car was a 1913 model, carrying a red flag and representing a caboose, the last car on the train. The conductor in charge was a veteran 83 years of age. Citizens volunteered the use of cars and it was a big trip for the visitors.

At the conclusion of the trip the visitors were taken to the State street entrance to the Capitol, where a group photograph was taken. They went to Chestnut Street Hall and auditorium and the secret sessions started. This was the thirty-eighth class for initiation since Deputy Presidents Burgess and Bessan started their membership drives. Upwards of 24,000 new members have been admitted since 1920. The total membership of the order, which started in 1868, is 61,000.

The degree team from Woodlawn Division, in Chicago, was started by Deputy President Burgess, and has been in charge of initiations ever since the membership drive was started. The costumes worn are said to be elaborate, and the most expensive used by any degree team in the United States.

Public Meeting
At 4:15 there was a public meeting in the auditorium, which was open to all railroaders, their families and citizens. Music was furnished by Tech High School orchestra. The speakers were Mayor George A. Hoover, L. E. Sheppard, grand president; William B. Burgess, Mrs. J. H. Moore and other officials of the order, including general chairmen from all over the United States and members of the Ladies' Auxiliary.

know nothing among you save Jesus Christ and Him crucified." Rev. Mr. Stine declared that it would be the aim of his ministry to say a good word for Jesus Christ every Sunday.

The subject of his sermon was "The Decision of a Spirit-guided Man." That man, the minister continued, was Paul, who, once a persecutor, saw, on the road to Damascus, a vision, in which a voice told him to preach the word of God in all places and at all times.

After declaring that the church today is paying too much attention to the by-products and too little attention to the essentials, Rev. Stine said the world is becoming lost in the glorification of its civilization, which was the direct cause of the downfall of so many of great nations of ancient and modern times.

He declared that the greatest sin in the world is that of disbelief in the great sinbearer, Jesus Christ, and that all the evil in the world today is due to sin. "Men today are not damned because they have sinned, but because they do not believe in Jesus Christ," Rev. Stine told his hearers.

He closed his sermon by the assertion that to be saved each person must realize the greatness and fullness of Jesus Christ.

Special music for the service was given by the choir.

Those who heard Rev. Mr. Stine were favorably impressed by his personality, his method of treating his subject and the subject matter itself.

RED CROSS PLANS FOR COMING YEAR

Over $2,000,000 in Fund for War Sufferers—National Budget Is $5,543,077.

AID TO VETERANS STANDS FIRST

Expended $9,738,448 in Services to Mankind Last Year at Home and Abroad.

Washington.—With a budget of $5,543,077.81 for carrying out the program of service during the current fiscal year, beginning July 1, the American Red Cross announces that this amount was $4,195,370.41 less than was expended during the fiscal year ended last June 30. During that year expenditures reached a total of $9,738,448.22, of which amount $2,605,696.09 was devoted to relief of refugees in Greece who had been driven out of Asia Minor. In announcing the budget for the year, the statement from National Headquarters emphasized the fact that its extensive work at home and abroad depends almost wholly upon the nation-wide support of the organization through enrollment of membership in large numbers during the annual roll call, which will be in progress from November 11 to November 29 under the auspices of the 3,600 Chapters in the United States and throughout the world. These Chapters, it is pointed out, during the last fiscal year expended of their own funds approximately $2,920,000 in work for the men who were the United States uniform during the World War, so that the estimate of some $15,000,000 expended during twelve months by the American Red Cross as a whole is considered conservative.

Soldier Service Stands First
From July 1, 1917, to June 30, 1923, the American Red Cross spent nationally and through its Chapters close to $104,000,000 in behalf of American soldiers who served in the war and their families. During last year the figure alone mounted to more than $5,866,255, and for the current fiscal year National Headquarters has set aside under the heading, "Assistance to Disabled ex-Servicemen and Women," $2,065,334.20. The Chapters will continue to do their part, so that it may be predicted with confidence that again more than $5,500,000 will be disbursed in the large variety of services to the disabled men and women and their families—services for which the Government cannot provide and which reach the individual case with the sympathy and understanding only actual contact can insure. This work of the American Red Cross approaches the fifth anniversary of the Armistice, which ended the World War with only slight decrease in calls for service in the interest of the welfare and rehabilitation of those who suffered physical disability in the service of their country.

In the interest of the enlisted men serving in the Army and the Navy the budget provides $309,020 for the current year. This is obligatory under the Red Cross charter, for the organization must act in matters of voluntary relief and as a medium of communication between the people and their Army and Navy.

Domestic Program Extensive
The domestic operations of the American Red Cross comprise an accurate indicator of the continuing calls for expansion in all the established and authorized services. The budget aggregates $4,636,449.70, as against expenditures during the last year of $4,452,058.20. The abnormal demands in the foreign field in the last several years, however, have largely subsided, and in consequence $966,628.11 has been set for the 1923-24 budget under foreign operations. On this amount $294,303.91 is set aside for engagements which will close the work for the refugees in Greece, for whose amelioration $2,605,696.09 was expended up to June 30, when the American Red Cross withdrew, and the work was taken over under the control of the Greek government. For liquidation and completion of general relief in Europe the budget provides $100,000, and for American Junior Red Cross projects, foreign and insular, and assistance to Chapters listed under foreign operations.

Ready for Emergency Calls
The readiness of the American Red Cross to answer immediately with effective service in cases of emergency is an outstanding feature of its program that is universally recognized. During last year $525,000 was spent for relief in 110 disasters, which was $207,500 in excess of budget provisions. This year $400,000 has been appropriated for this service. Since 1921 the Red Cross has administered more than $20,000,000 in relief work following disasters.

Other budget items in the schedule for domestic operations include $1,287,524.20 for service and assistance to the 3,600 Chapters and their Branches; $30,000 for assistance to other organizations; particularly addressing child health activities; $194,500 for Junior Red Cross projects and service; $10,824.20 for assistance to Nurses' Training Schools, and for other activities $111,458.80. For supervision of service activities and general management of the entire American Red Cross less than $225,000 is allotted.

Who is this man Ford we see so much about in newspapers? Is he a presidential candidate?

NOBODY HOME

THREE MEN AND A MAID

"I don't want it. I shouldn't know what to do with it."
"You must take it," she said in a low voice. "It is a symbol."
"A what?"
"A symbol of our broken love."
"I don't see how you make that out. It's a golliver."
"I can never marry you now."
"What! Good heavens! Don't be absurd."
"I can't."
"Oh, go on, have a dash at it," he said encouragingly, though his heart was sinking.
She shook her head.
"No, I couldn't."
"Oh, hang it all!"
"I couldn't. I'm a strange girl..."
"You're a darned silly girl..."
"I don't see what right you have to say that," she flared.
"I don't see what right you have to say you can't marry me and try to load me up with gollivers," he retorted with equal heat.
"Oh, can't you understand?"
"No, I'm dashed if I can."
She looked at him despondently.
"When I said I would marry you, you were here to me. You stood to me for everything that was noble and brave and wonderful. I had only to shut my eyes to conjure up the picture of you as you dived off the rail that morning. Now"—her voice trembled—"if I shut my eyes now—I can only see a man with a hideous black face making himself the laughing stock of the ship. How can I marry you, haunted by that picture?"

"But, good heavens, you talk as if I made a habit of blacking up! You talk as if you expected me to come to the altar smothered in burnt cork."
"I shall always think of you as I saw you tonight."
She looked at him sadly. "There's a bit of black still on your left ear."
He tried to take her hand. "But she drew it away. He fell back as if struck.
"So this is the end," he muttered.
"Yes. It's partly on your ear and partly on your cheek."
"So this is the end," he repeated.
"You had better go below and ask your steward to give you some more butter."
He laughed bitterly.
"Well, I might have expected it. I might have known what would happen! Eustace warned me. Eustace was right. He knows women—as I do now. Women! What mighty ills have not been done by women? Who was betrayed the what's-its-name? A woman! Who lost... lost... lost... who—er—and so on? A woman... So all is over! There is nothing to be said but goodbye!"

"No."
"Good-by, then, Miss Bennett."
"Good-by," said Billie sadly. "I—I'm sorry."
"Don't mention it!"
"You do understand, don't you?"
"You have made everything perfectly clear."
"I hope—I hope you won't be unhappy."
"Unhappy!" Sam produced a strange noise from his larynx, like the cry of a shrimp in pain. "Unhappy! The best of me!"

that idea? I'm smiling! I'm laughing! I feel I've had a wonderful escape."
"It's very unkind and rude of you to say that."
"It reminds me of a moving picture I saw in New York. It was called, 'Saved From the Scaffold.'"
"Oh!"
"I'm not unhappy. What have I got to be unhappy about? What on earth does any man want to get married for? I don't... Give me my gay bachelor life! My uncle Charlie used to say, 'It's better luck to get married than it is to be kicked in the head by a mule.'"

But he was an optimist. Good-night, Miss Bennett. And good-by—for ever. He turned on his heel and strode across the deck. From a white heaven the moon still shone benignly down, mocking him. He had spoken bravely; the most capacious critic could not but have admitted that he had made a good exit. But already his heart was aching. As he drew near to his stateroom, he was amazed and disgusted to hear a high tenor voice raised in song proceeding from behind the closed door.

I fee-er naw faw in shoe-ining arr-mor. Though his lance be sharp and-er keen.
But I fee-er, I fee-er the glah-mor. Through thy der-rooping lashes seen: I fee-er, I fee-er the glah-mor...
Sam flung open the door wrathfully. That Eustace Hignett should be alive was bad—he had pictured him hurling himself overboard and bobbing about, a pleasing sight, in the wake of the vessel; that he should be singing was an outrage. Remorse, Sam thought, should have stricken Eustace Hignett dumb. Instead of which, here he was comporting himself like a blasted linnet. It was all wrong. The man could have no conscience whatever.
"Well," he said, sternly, "so there you are!"

Eustace Hignett looked up brightly, even beamingly. In the brief interval which had elapsed since Sam had seen him last an extraordinary transformation had taken place in this young man. His hair looked like a cloud of smoke. His eyes were bright. His face wore that beaming self-satisfied smirk which you see in pictures advertising certain makes of fine-mesh underwear. If Eustace Hignett had been a full-page drawing in a magazine with "My dear fellow, I always wear Sigbee's Super-fine Featherweight!" printed underneath him, he could not have looked more pleased with himself.

"Hello!" he said. "I was wondering where you had got to."
"Never mind," said Sam coldly. "Where I had got to! Where did you get to, and why? You poor, miserable worm," he went on in a burst of generous indignation, "what have you to say for yourself? What do you mean by dashing away like that and killing my little entertainment?"
"Awfully sorry, old man. I hadn't foreseen the clear. I was bearing up tolerably well till I began to sniff the smoke. Then everything seemed to go black—I don't mean you, of course. You were black already—and I got the feeling that I simply must get on deck and see what was going on."

"Well, why didn't you?" demanded Sam, with a strong sense of injury. "I might have forgiven you then. But to come down here and find you stung..."
A soft light came into Eustace Hignett's eyes.
"I want to tell you all about that," he said. "It's the most astonishing story. A miracle, you might almost call it. Makes you believe in Fate and all that sort of thing. A week ago I was on the Subway in New York..."

He broke off while Sam cursed him, the Subway and the city of New York. In the order named.
"My dear chap, what is the matter?"
"What is the matter? Ha!"
"Something is the matter," persisted Eustace Hignett. "I can tell it by your manner. Something has happened to disturb and upset you. I know you so well that I can pierce the mask. What is it? Tell me."
"You surely can't still be brooding on that concert business? Why, that's all over. I take it that after my departure you made the most colossal ass of yourself, but why let that worry you? These things cannot affect one permanently."
"Can't they? Let me tell you that as a result of that concert my engagement is broken off."

Eustace sprang forward with outstretched hand.
"Not really? How splendid! Accept my congratulations! This is the finest thing that could possibly have happened. These are not idle words. As one who has been engaged to the girl himself, I speak feelingly. You are well out of it, Sam."

Sam thrust aside his hand. Had it been his neck he might have clutched it eagerly, but he drew the line at shaking hands with Eustace Hignett.
"My heart is broken," he said with dignity.
"That feeling will pass, giving way to one of devout thankfulness. I know! I've been there. After all... Willhelmina Bennett... what is she? A rag and a bone and a hank of hair."
"She is nothing of the kind," said Sam, revolted.

"Pardon me," said Eustace firmly, "I speak as an expert. I know her and I repeat, she is a rag and a bone and a hank of hair."
"She is the only girl in the world, and owing to your idiotic behavior I have lost her."
"You speak of the only girl in the world," said Eustace blithely. "If you want to hear about the only girl in the world, I will tell you. A week ago I was in the Subway in New York..."
"I'm going to bed," said Sam brusquely.

"All right, I'll tell you while you're undressing."
"I don't want to listen."
"A week ago," said Eustace Hignett, "I will ask you to picture me seated, after some difficulty, in a New York subway; I got into conversation with a girl with an elephant gun."
Sam revised his private commination service in order to include the elephant gun.
"She was my soul-mate," proceeded Eustace with quiet determination. "I didn't know it at the time, but she was. She had grave brown eyes, a wonderful personality, and this elephant gun. She was bringing the gun away from the downtown place where she had taken it to be mended."
"Did she shoot you with it?"
"Shoot me? What do you mean? Why, no?"
"The girl must have been a fool!" said Sam bitterly. "The chance of a lifetime and she missed it. Where are my pajamas?"
"I haven't seen your pajamas. She talked to me about this elephant gun, and explained its mechanism. You can imagine how she soothed my aching heart. My heart, if you recollect, was aching at that moment—quite unnecessarily if I had only known—because it was only a couple of days since my en-agement to Willhelmina Bennett had been broken off. Well, we parted at Sixty-sixth street and, strange as it may seem, I forgot all about her."

"Do it again!"
"Tell it again?"
"Good heavens, no! Forget all about her again."
"Nothing," said Eustace Hignett gravely, "could make me do that. Our souls have blended. Our beings have been called to one another from their deepest depths, saying... There are your pajamas, over in the corner... saying, 'You are mine.' How could I forget her after that? Well, as I was saying, we parted. Little did I know that she was sailing on this very boat! But just now she came to me as I writhed on deck..."
"Did you write?" asked Sam with a flicker of moody interest.
"I certainly did."
"That's good!"
"But not for long."
"That's bad!"

FIREMEN AND FORTUNES

A New York fireman, who 20 years ago entered the paid department with net assets of exactly $200, resigned a few days ago possessed of an estate worth $200,000—accumulated in sideline activities during his twenty years of service.

From $200 to $200,000 in 20 years is no small achievement. Many a business or professional man devoting himself exclusively to one calling has accumulated less and has been regarded as a success.

Of course, some will label Fireman William J. Weisner as being favored with luck, and let it go at that. But those who look deeper into such things and who analyze his "luck" will find it composed chiefly of opportunity, initiative and business enterprise.

He didn't play the ponies or break the bank in some exclusive West Side gambling club.

But during the idle hours he spent in his fire station with nothing particular to do in his line of duty, he began the study of real estate values in the section of the city with which he was most familiar. And it was through real estate deals that he finally accumulated nearly a quarter of a million dollars. Not in one or two transactions did he accomplish this. The start was slow and the going at times was hard. He had to go in debt, and more than once he found his financial position rather "tight." But, by exercise of good judgment in making his investments

SUCCESS

Here is the road to fame
And fortune's golden smile:
Honor too strong for shame,
Patience to wait the while,
Courage to bear the pain,
Pluck when the hill is steep,
Faith when your strength seems vain—
Never is victory cheap.Here is the price of worth
And conquest's shining goal:
Hands for the tasks of earth.And ever a sturdy soul,
Willing to bear the load,
Sowing before you reap,
Daring to blaze the road—
Never is victory cheap.Here is what glory asks,
Here is what life requires:
Grace at the common tasks,
Patience that never tires,
Men who will slowly climb
Mountainous pathways steep,
Willing to bide their time—
Never is victory cheap.

and the use of a business sense developed through study and experience, he always succeeded in pulling himself out. As his assets increased, his confidence was strengthened and he enlarged his operations, never in the meanwhile permitting these to interfere with his duties as a fireman.

Similar opportunities for material success surround young men in all callings. Initiative and enterprise in taking hold of them will be rewarded in proportion to the wisdom with which these qualities are applied. Instead of real estate, the opportunity may be more in line with the regular occupation of some. It may be the kind that beckons the office boy to the presidency of the concern that employs him, or that marks the path between section hand and head of some great railroad. But it generally is present in some form, and Fireman Wiesner is but one of numerous examples occurring almost daily in the United States.

Thieves' Attempt Fails

WAYNESBORO.—Intruders recently tried to effect an entrance to the new dry cleaning plant of W. C. Hoffman, located in the rear of his office on South Potomac street. One of the windows was found partly raised in the morning when Mr. Hoffman opened the plant. The window had been pried open and it is thought that before the parties could complete the job they were frightened away. Mrs. L. S. McGinley, who lives nearby, heard the intruders trying to open the window and later saw two strangers leave the premises and walk onto Potomac street. One of the men was tall and the other short, both of slender build and both wore caps.

Boys' Department at Y.

WAYNESBORO.—The "Boys' department at the Y. M. C. A. was formally opened last week with a special program. Over one hundred and fifty parents and friends were present. At the close of the evening's entertainment refreshments were served by Dr. R. G. Eveland and James McKown, members of the boy's work committee. The program of the evening consisted of drills and contests all of which were much enjoyed. One of the contests was a basketball game between the Junior Y. A. C. and Troop 2 of the Boy Scouts, the latter team winning by the score of 28-17.

Is 70th Fire Alarm

WAYNESBORO.—The firemen were called out recently to extinguish a fire that had started on the dump on East Main street. The fire had started under a pile of debris and a great deal of trouble was experienced in getting in the fire. Three hours were consumed by the firemen on this job. A line of hose was run out to the dump from the plug at the intersection of Clayton avenue. This was the second fire at the dump in a week. The alarm was the seventieth sent in so far this year.

Washington

Auto Is Sought

HAGERSTOWN.—Police are searching for an automobile containing 3 men which sped through the city and escaped from Traffic Officer

Baughman after striking and damaging the automobile of Charles Mowen, local jeweler, on Jonathan street. The car drove into this city from Summit avenue and struck the Mowen car near Washington street. When the machine failed to stop after the collision, Baughman hailed a passing automobile and gave chase. He lost trace of the car near the western end of Hagerstown. A later investigation revealed that the trio had come to this city from Waynesboro. In Waynesboro they picked up a hiker who left them when they entered the city. They had apparently been drinking and were driving the car from one side of the street to the other when the collision occurred.

100-Year-Old Vet Freed

HAGERSTOWN.—Frank Schmidt, century-old wanderer, who was found asleep in a ditch along the Cearsfoot pike Thursday night, will be permitted to leave the jail whenever he chooses and if the weather is fair he plans to return home. Schmidt was found sleeping in a ditch by Detective Thurston and Patrolman Brown. He is a veteran of the Civil War and lives near Norristown, Pa. He frequently walks to this section and works for farmers. Pennsylvania authorities notified Sheriff Kline that they would send for Schmidt in the event he could not return home alone. They said that he was not without means and could if necessary be taken care of at a soldiers' home.

Punch Boards Barred

HAGERSTOWN.—A local fraternal organization which had recently put out punch boards in a number of local stores for the purpose of raising money for a building fund was Friday directed by Chief of Police Baber to recall these boards. Making use of these boards is a violation of the law and when it was called to the attention of Chief Baber he immediately ordered it stopped. Officials of the lodge in question have obeyed his edict.

Cars Stick in City Street

FREDERICK.—Two automobiles got stuck in the mud recently on North Market street. A roadster, bearing a Maryland license, and a touring car, with a Pennsylvania license, were the unfortunate cars. The first car was implanted in the ditch which once constituted a gutter in front of McCrorey's Five and Ten Cent store. The Pennsylvania car got stuck in a similar manner almost opposite, in front of C. Warren Taylor's harness shop. The city authorities saw that the cars were gotten out. Superintendent of Streets George Culler supervised a number of workmen in the work of getting them out. Mayor Culler was also present. The light car was "righted" without much difficulty. The right rear wheel of the Pennsylvania car, however, was in up to the hub and it was necessary to put a plank under it and jack it up.

Gas Down To 19 Cents

FREDERICK.—A cut in the wholesale price of gasoline from 19 cents to 17 cents, including the state tax, has been announced by all local dealers. The first concern to reduce the price of this commodity was the Gulf Refining Company, whose new price went into effect Wednesday. The local offices of the Standard Oil Company, the Texas Company and the Indian Refining Company all reduced prices on Thursday morning. The retail price of gasoline is now 19 and 20 cents. This is the lowest the product has been for a period of from six to ten years. An official of one of the local concerns stated that he believed that the prices will be still further reduced. Officials of other concerns stated they did not believe there would be any price war and that the wholesale price "was about as low as it was going."

Pulls Gun; Is Beaten Up

FREDERICK.—Luther Beall, about 25, North Market street, was arrested and lodged in jail about 8:30 o'clock Thursday evening when he was found in the yard in the rear of the home of Ira Stottlemeyer, West Patrick street. Stottlemeyer, together with several other men, found Beall loitering in his yard, it was said. When he was accosted, Beall drew a gun, it was said, and ordered Stottlemeyer to throw up his hands. Instead of doing as he was ordered, Stottlemeyer attacked Beall and beat him severely, it was said. The officials at the jail were then notified and Deputy Sheriff's Bartgis and Arthur Jones responded and placed Beall under arrest.

Glass Houses.

According to Pliny, the discovery of glass must be credited to the Syrians. It is known that the Syrians erected houses of glass and in the ruins of Pompeii windows of that material have been found.

The SANDMAN STORY

HE WON A PRINCESS

ONCE upon a time there was a princess so beautiful that dozens of suitors came to her father's court to seek her hand. The king was rich and powerful, but he loved his daughter so much that he let her have her own way in everything.

Jem was an orphan lad who cleaned the pots and pans in the kitchen. His post was a humble one, but Jem was strong, brave and determined to make himself something in the world.

That evening the palace was full of music, light and gaily dressed lords and ladies. All the princess who came courting wore gorgeous suits, and so many were there that their horses stood four deep in the stables.

Behind a big palm Jem hid himself and looked in wonder at the scene of magnificence. As midnight sounded there was a blast heard from without, a noise as of tramping feet grew loud, the doors of the big ballroom flew apart and there on the threshold stood a great brown dwarf. His eyes were green, his face wrinkled, and his long, black hair hung in curls around his huge head.

"I have come for my bride!" he shouted in a loud voice. "I am the king of the Thousand Isles and no human dare brave my power. Let the princess come with me and make resistance, lest I destroy this whole castle at once with my men."

The king was shaking with rage. "Arrest and cast into prison that impudent clown," he cried to the guards.

"Put out the lights," screamed the dwarf. "Seize the princess and bear her off to my car."

At the foot of the marble stairs waited a golden car drawn by four winged horses and into this the dwarf stepped.

Not a soul had moved to save her, for all were stunned by the suddenness of the attack and blinded by the darkness. Yet one there was who kept his senses, and that was Jem, for as the dwarf bore the princess by him, the lad followed closely behind, and hid himself behind the high seat which the others occupied.

In another instant the horses were cleaving the sky with their wings and leaving behind the castle, from which they could hear a great tumult and shouting arise.

The princess were running about madly seeking the one who had stolen the princess, and the king sat as if turned to stone. The castle was searched high and low, but not a trace of the princess could be found. Far away, a mere speck in the midnight sky, the dwarf was urging his horses to their home in the crest of the great Black Mountain, where no one could scale the walls to rescue any prisoner.

Jem held on silently. The rush of air made his head swim, but he wrapped his arms and legs around the seat posts, and was carried safely along with the princess. About dawn the horses stopped on a rock and the dwarf took the princess into a stone chamber, which stood a thousand feet above the valley below.

"You are my captive," said the dwarf as he placed the frightened girl within the room. "When you consent to be my bride you shall be freed."

Then he went out, closing the door and locking it fast behind him—but he did not notice that in a dark closet in the hall nearby Jem had secreted himself so as to be able to aid the princess. But what could he do—here, hundreds of miles away from home and the princess secured within huge stone walls?

While the dwarf lay sleeping Jem went outside beneath the window of the princess and saw there a huge hammock swinging from the trees. He called softly to her to leap out. She stood a moment on the window, then sprang down. The soft, firm folds of silk held and she rolled to the ground unharmed. Quickly Jem ran to the stable and harnessed the winged horses to the gilded car. The princess leaped in and Jem took his place beside her.

By dawn the car alighted in the courtyard of the princess' home. And the next night there was a wedding in which Jem was the groom and the princess the happy bride.

For Swollen Joints

Most remedies fail but Joint-Ease succeeds.

It's for joint troubles only, whether in ankle, knee, hip, elbow, shoulder, finger or spine—whether rheumatic or not.

It limbers up stiff, inflamed, painful, creaky joints so quickly you'll be astonished.

Two seconds' rubbing and away it goes through skin and flesh right down to the bone and ligaments—that's why it succeeds. Ask Peoples Drug Store and Stallsmith's Newsstand Drug Store, or any reliable druggist.

Football players must be tough. They must be tough as cafe steaks. Eating cafe steaks will help them.

HIGH CLASS COATS THAT ARE ESPECIALLY APPEALING

Among our large stock of coats you will find those of the highest class that make a distinctive appeal to every one that beholds them. When you can afford to pay more for your clothes it is a satisfaction to inspect a stock like ours. Every taste has been kept in mind and the stock that we are able to present for your inspection is one of which we can be justly proud.

Have'nt you found that it often pays to pay more for a coat than you ordinarily would. The added wear, the better styling, and the comfortable feeling of being well dressed all make the added cost seem more than well spent. When deciding what you are going to put in a coat for Fall and Winter wear take these things into consideration.

$30.00—$35.00—$40.00

Plaids, stripes and plains in imported tweeds, and other excellent wearing materials.

$37.50

Bolivia in brown, navy and black both in slender silhouette and full cut skirt, lined throughout. Some with saddle stitching on collar and sleeve. A great bargain at this price. Similar ones at $35.00.

$45.00—$50.00—$60.00

You will find in this group a variety of cloths of the Bolivia family but advertised under a score of names. Many with fur collars which include all of the well known furs. Straight silhouette and others fuller cut. Nearly all with side fastenings, either tie or button. No two exactly alike but a great variety of styles.

Here will be found the really distinctive line. The variety of style will help you to get a coat to suit your figure as every type has been provided for. Every item has been marked at least $10.00 less than the same coat or one of equal quality can be bought elsewhere.

COLLEGE BEATS RIVAL BY SCORE OF 17 TO 3

fullback, caught the ball, jumped over two Muhlenberg players who threw themselves at his heels, straight-armed several more would-be tacklers and dashed across the goal for a touchdown. Mordan kicked the extra point, and one minute afterward the half ended.

The Last Rally
Schweimler electrified the crowd on the next kickoff by carrying the ball 40 yards to midfield, but it yielded his team nothing, for Gettysburg got the ball soon afterward on a forward pass and Decker kicked over the line. Muhlenberg brought it out, time was going fast, and in a desperate attempt to retrieve victory from apparently sure defeat it attempted a forward.

Decker caught the pass and ran unmolested across for Gettysburg's second touchdown. Mordan made the extra point.

Gettysburg had thirteen first downs to Muhlenberg's five.

English-American GREATCOAT

—and it's SOME coat—a perfect bear for warmth. Belt all around, large patch pockets that you can pack plenty into; has outside breast pocket; big buttons that slip into willing buttonholes; raglan sleeves. Made in a wealth of warm fleecy fabrics, plain or plaid back just like a blanket. For peppy style this Greatcoat tops 'em all. Prices astonishingly reasonable.

They are good for valuable presents.

If everybody in the United States learned to play football we could chase the book agents ragged.

Best football players come from the broad open spaces where men are men and women are girls.

Learning football is no easy matter. Arguing with traffic cops and ice men is fine training.

HEALTH and beauty go hand in hand. Where the system is run down—the face drawn and haggard—the body limp and lifeless—beauty is missing. Looks of pity supplant those that might have been gazes of admiration.

Restore your health and beauty will take care of herself. S. S. S.—the rich blood builder—rekindles the spark of health and lights the blaze of beauty by building red blood cells. The nerve power of your system finds life in these very blood cells. Build more red blood cells and your nerve power will increase. S. S. S. builds them. Rich blood will tingle through your system. That lost charm will return. Your entire system will be repaired. You will be ready to cope with the impurities and blemishes that handicap beauty.

As physical health means beauty so, too, does S. S. S. mean beauty. For S. S. S. means systems that are free from impurities—pimples, blackheads, acne, boils, eczema, rheumatism. S. S. S. and good health go hand in hand.

S. S. S. is made of pure vegetable ingredients. It is sold at all good drug stores. The large size bottle is more economical.

ELIHU ROOT IS ILL

New York, Oct. 20.—Elihu Root is suffering from an attack of kidney trouble and is confined to his bed in this city, his secretary said Friday.

Doctors were reported to have discovered a stone in his left kidney which they hope to remove without an operation.

Factories Poorly Lighted.

Lighting experts state that only 20 per cent of the factories of the United States are adequately lighted—in other words 80 per cent are illuminated below normal.
